MISS SHIELDS IS BRIDE OF BEVERLEY RANDOLPH

Ceremony Takes Place at Home of Bride at West Franklin Street. Prominent Wedding of To-Day.

The marriage of Miss Harriet Martin Shields, daughter of Mrs. Charles M. Shields, to Beverley Randolph, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Randolph, of Clarke County, which took place yesterday evening at 6:30 o'clock in the bride's home, 1006 West Franklin Street, although very quietly celebrated, was an event of much importance to society. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Walter Russell Bowie, D. D., rector of St. Paul's Church, and on account of mourning only the immediate families were present. Mrs. L. Newton Vaughan, Jr., was her sister's dame of honor and only attendant, and William F. Randolph, Jr., was best man for his brother. The bride descended the stairs with her brother, Charles W. Shields, who gave her away. Some of the out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mrs. William F. Randolph, of Clarke; Mrs. Benjamin O'Fallon, Miss Ethel O'Fallon, Mrs. James Draper and Miss Cornelia Draper, of Wilmington, Del.; Dr. William Duke and Miss Elizabeth Barton, of Kansas City, and Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Grandy, of Norfolk.

Mrs. Purcell Entertains.

A pretty affair yesterday was the buffet luncheon given by Mrs. Benjamin L. Purcell at her country estate, "Piscataway," near Glen Allen. The luncheon was in honor of Misses Martha Chambers, Mary Lyon Tyler and Roberta Pleasant, all three of whom are debutantes of this season, and only the younger society was included in the guests invited to meet them. The rooms were decorated everywhere in fall foliage, holly and bowls of chrysanthemums. A centerpiece of chrysanthemums and shaded lights was used on the luncheon table. Entertaining.

Pink roses and lighted candles decorated the home of Harriet Harris, 1029 West Grace Street, last evening for a dinner at which he was host in honor of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity. The table was set with a centerpiece of pink flowers and covers were laid for eighteen guests.

Invitations Out.

Invitations are out for a bridge luncheon to be given by Mrs. William Wharton Archer Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at her home, 508 East Franklin Street. Mrs. Archer is entertaining in honor of Miss Roberta Pleasant and Miss Mary Tyler, both debutantes of this season.

Another debutante affair of this month is a tea to be given by Mrs. William T. Oppenheimer and Miss Sarah Oppenheimer at their home, 1006 West Grace Street in compliment to Miss Nell Wise, the debutante daughter of Mr. Barton H. Wise. The function will be given on the afternoon of November 18, and only the buds of the season have been asked to meet the guest of honor.

Weddings To-Day.

Smart society will be busily engaged with a number of prominent wedding ceremonies to-day, both in and out of town. Some of these are to be very quietly celebrated, and others are to be fashionable church affairs, with brilliant assemblies to witness the events. A very quiet, but important marriage of to-day is that of Miss Harriet L. Miller, daughter of the late Mr. Miller, of Bon Air, to Alexander Weldon Neal, which will be celebrated at 12:30 o'clock in the home of the bride's brother, W. Withers Miller, 1501 West Grace Street, with Rev. E. McCluer, D. D., of Bon Air, officiating. On account of mourning, only the immediate relatives will witness the ceremony.

A number of Richmond guests will be in Orange this evening for the wedding of Miss Pauline McIntosh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Frank McIntosh, to Howard Green Shackelford, formerly of this city. The ceremony will be a brilliant affair, and will take place this evening at 7 o'clock in the Orange Baptist Church. Rev. R. E. Staples and Rev. Robert S. Carver, of Orange, will officiate. The bride will be her sister's maid of honor, and Judge George S. Shackelford, uncle of the groom, will be best man. Messrs. M. G. Field, R. Carroll Slaughter, and Scott Shackelford, Jr., Dan McIntosh, all of Orange; Richard C. Wortham, of Richmond, and Archie Goodloe, of Culpeper, will be groomsmen, and the ribbons will be held by the Annie Perry McIntosh and Annie Griswold McIntosh. The bride's father will give her away.

In Washington. Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Blowers, of Springfield, S. C., who have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. C. W. Parr, on Park Avenue, left town Friday for Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Blowers were accompanied to Washington by Mr. and Mrs. Parr and spent the weekend with Congressman and Mrs. Joseph T. Johnson at the New Willard Hotel.

In the North. Frank W. McCulloch, of Norfolk, and Mrs. L. H. Butterick, of Richmond, who have been visiting their brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Wright, at Wildwood, 2235 West Grace Street, left for Philadelphia, where they are the guests of their niece, Mrs. Robert Coleman Walker. With Mr. and Mrs. Walker they attended the Princeton football game Saturday at Princeton, N. J.

Invitations Out.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Urner, of Grove Avenue, to the guests of their daughter, Ann, to Robert King, Wednesday evening, November 25, at 8:30 o'clock in Centenary Methodist Church. Miss Urner has just returned from a visit to relatives in Harrisonburg.

Mrs. Donaldson is a most interesting speaker, and has just returned from New York, where she has been studying the subject of the present European war at Columbia University under the best known masters of that institution of learning.

A committee from the churches and Mothers' Club of Highland Park will give a concert in the school auditorium Friday evening at 8 o'clock for the benefit of the Belgian relief fund. It will be a very attractive event, and the public is invited.

MLLE. PAVLOWA DESCRIBES NEWEST SOCIETY DANCE

Gives Instructions for Forward and Back Walk and Side Glide in One-Step.

ARTICLE II.—THE SIDE-GLIDE IN THE ONE-STEP.

(By Anna Pavlova.)

The side-glide, which constitutes the second division of my standardized one-step, is to be performed after eight counts, in which four are first in a forward direction for the lady and the next four reversed, taken with the cavalier going forward.

It consists of steps to the right, instead of the left of the cavalier. Occupying a "closed" position, the partners are ready to begin the side-glide, the lady on her right foot and her partner on his left.

When the lady, who is in a "closed" position with her partner, moves to her left on count "one," starting on her right foot, which she brings edwise along the floor until it rests close against the left. On count "two" she stands perfectly still, taking no step whatsoever.

When count "three" arrives the lady takes a fairly long step to the left with her left foot, and on the ball of the foot; and on the fourth count she brings her right foot close beside the left, as she did in starting the figure on the first count. The next four counts are, for the lady, left foot to the left, on ball of the foot, on count "one" (or five, if it be easier to remember it) right foot brought along side left on count "two," and a repetition of these steps to the lady's left on counts "three" and "four."

During these last four counts, the lady and her cavalier make a gradual turn to the left, until on the final step they have made between a quarter and a half turn. On the eighth (or second count of four) count the dancer's right foot to resume the figure in the one-step for eight counts or to progress into the next one.

The photograph is of myself and partner taking one of the long steps in the side-glide of the one-step.

The above article is the second of an illustrated series by Anna Pavlova, the famous Russian ballerina, at the St. Petersburg Imperial Opera, on the new social dances. The photographs are of her and her partner, Ivan Claustrine (maître de ballet) of the Imperial Opera houses in St. Petersburg, Moscow and the Paris Grand Opera.

The Jewel Setting

BY LILLIAN RUSSELL.

If a beautiful diamond were set in a ring of coarse and tarnished brass every body who saw it would exclaim: "What a shame!" The gold in the setting of the precious jewel is holding the setting includes the hand and really the whole person of the wearer. It is just as much a part of the diamond in a crude setting of brass as there is no ring which is becoming to the finger with a black tipped nail.

The same is true of the stained or filthy hand that is more in need of soap and water than jewels to make it presentable. What applies to the hand is also applicable to the rest of the person. The most careless girl would not think of appearing in a shabby hat and décolleté evening gown. For this same reason every article intended to adorn the person should be in accord.

A diamond through its beauty and brilliancy either beautifies the hand or by presenting a comparison emphasizes its shortcomings. The jewel will attract special attention to the hands and nails which in its absence might escape with only passing notice.

It is the nature of the jewel to draw the attention of men to the person's appearance before submitting to the public gaze. This is because women spend more time in the privacy of the home and are less accustomed to the public eye. But a man should be as careful a woman to make his general appearance measure up to the ring on his finger or the jewel in his scarf.

The presence of a man with a shoddy and his finger while his shoes are being put on, and the down at the heel of the shoe, is a disgrace to the jewel should be sold to finance a trip to the shoe dealers.

The jewel always attracts special attention to that part of the person where it is worn—the face to the hair, the hair to the neck and the neck to the shoulders, the bracelet to the arm, the ring to the hand. Jewels seldom, however, ever attract attention to the face, but they do make the person complete when the precious stone is set in metal. The remainder of the setting must be designed and supplied by the wearer.

Remember: There is no diamond sufficiently brilliant to dim the eye to the finger with a nail in mourning and the hand with only a passing acquaintance with soap and water.

Lillian Russell's Answer. I know of 240 internal remedies for enlarging the bust. Gentle massage with cocoa butter around and upward along the glands will enlarge the breasts. This is the safest remedy I know of. Exercise that involves the muscles of the arms and chest will also tend to increase the size of the bust. Deep breathing will also help, and singing is a splendid exercise. Any hard pressure tends to flatten the bust. Eat fat of meat and drink cream and milk.

fat of meat and dring cream and milk, sleep a good deal, and don't worry.

F. H.: I cannot give you the name of a skin food on the market, but I can send you the formula for one if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope. This is excellent for massaging the face and for filling in hollows. A good tonic would be beneficial to your hair. Keep the dandruff loose on your scalp for when it forms a hard crust it will make the hair come out. When shampooing the hair use a small brush to cleanse the scalp. This will remove all the dandruff. If the dandruff has formed a hard crust, it may be removed by rubbing vasoline into your scalp the day before shampooing. Then when the hair is shampooed and will easily be removed. I shall also send you my formula for hair tonic, which is good for dandruff.

Anxious: Moles are disagreeing, but the risk is too great in having them removed. Don't tamper with them or irritate them in any way. If irritated, they sometimes form a growth. They are dangerous, and it is best to leave them alone. You are still so young that the least infection may develop in time, but don't think of removing them.

E. E.: I am sorry, but I am unable to give you a formula for liquid powder for the face. I do not advise the use of liquid powders on the face. Some times it is necessary to use on the neck and arms, but they are injurious to the skin of the face.

Dr. Brady's Health Talks

Whooping Cough.

Most cases of whooping-cough occur in children from two to five years old. But young babies, especially bottle babies, and elderly persons, especially lovers of the fire-side, are also susceptible to the infection.

It is due to a bacillus which is given off in the sputum. Contact with a patient or a convalescent seems to be essential for the transfer of the infection. Whooping-cough cases ought to be isolated from contact with all other children so long as any cough or expectoration continues. The disease is reportable to the health officer about the disease and the appearance of the first signs of illness, is from one week to two weeks. But the onset is very gradual, first a simple cold, then an ordinary tracheitis or bronchitis, lasting a week or ten days. Then the cough becomes more spasmodic, the coughing at frequent intervals, and in a few days the whoop develops. It is at first a mere grasping intake of breath. Then the coughing spells become more frequent and more severe, until eventually it becomes a loud sound which gives the disease its name.

The Prevention of Complications. The disease in itself is painful to the child, but the complications are what are dangerous. If he is not handled properly, it may lead to pneumonia. With all respect for mothers, but with greater anxiety about the children, we insist that too many victims of whooping-cough are done to death by bad air. The sleeping room, witness, but the average child can never requires better ventilation than when whooping-cough is present.

The house. It is a well proven fact that the more thorough the ventilation, the less frequent and the less severe are the spells of coughing. The great danger in whooping-cough is broncho-pneumonia—"aust-focative catarrh," as our medical fathers called it—and this complication is certainly invited by inadequate ventilation. Daytimes, of course, the child should have every possible advantage of outdoor air.

Not by dyes, but by so simple a process as the use of the hair of the use of Hay's Hair Health.

This is a natural method. Hay's Hair Health contains elements which stimulate each hair and hair root. In addition it contains a wonderful ingredient which, when applied, causes the faded gray hairs to be gradually but surely restored to color, through the action of oxygen in the air. Nothing could be simpler or more effective.

dominal belt, about ten inches wide, having an insertion of two inches of woven elastic material on either side, and eyelets and tape to lace it snugly over the undershirt in the rear. This supports the child's abdominal muscles, renders the spilla less of a strain on him, and prevents possible rupture.

Questions and Answers.

Mrs. L. S. M. writes: We enjoy your health talks very much and discuss them in the family circle, but without wishing to criticize, we wish your opinion of some of the more remedies for simple conditions than you do.

Reply—Thanks. When we please, tell the editors: when we don't, tell us. If you will send in a list of the simple conditions you refer to, we will consider your request in future articles. However, we cannot attempt to prescribe.

L. J. C. writes: I am twenty years of age, stenographer. My health is fair, but I am somewhat anemic. Would you kindly inform me what is your opinion of a blood purifier?

Reply—It is excellent.

"Anxious" Mrs. S. P. L. E. L. C. W. C.—Personal questions cannot be answered unless stamped and addressed envelope is included with your letter.

Mrs. W. H. B. inquires: (1) In what condition does pericarditis leave the heart? (2) Is it well for one to work after having an attack? (3) What are the symptoms of a weak heart? (4) Is a nervous heart dangerous?

Reply—1. Pericarditis is an inflammation of the double-walled membranous sac which covers the heart. Adhesions are likely to occur between the two walls and interfere with free beating of the heart. The late results of pericarditis depends upon the character of the adhesions left behind. The heart may be permanently embarrassed or apparently as good as ever. 2. Ask your doctor. 3. Loss of efficiency. 4. Not if it is only nervous.

Ambitious states: I am a girl not yet twenty, always well, but of late dull, tired, sleepy. Eat and sleep well but seem to be lazy. Is it malaria? Please give cure. What is a good cure for catarrh?

Reply—You supposed only boys developed this complaint at twenty. It isn't malaria. Walk four miles a day with low, flat heels, and plenty of room for the feet. Breathe a mile deep. If breathing is difficult, have the nose and throat and chest thoroughly examined to determine what causes the symptom, catarrh.

Rest Nose. The nose is a more delicate organ than most people imagine. It should be touched as little as possible. For undue touching the treatment recommended in following paragraph will be found effective. Apply without rubbing.

Muddy Skin. The skin, safest and surest method of giving a clear, healthy, transparent appearance to the complexion is to supply ordinary mercurized wax every night for from one to two weeks. This wax, obtained at any drug store (one ounce is taken), actually takes off a bad complexion by gently and gradually absorbing the dirt and surface skin. The new skin then in evidence is as fresh and velvety as a young girl's. The wax is applied like cold cream and washed off morning.

Wrinkles. A harmless lotion made as follows has been found very effective in cases of wrinkles and crow's-feet: Powdered salicylic acid, 1 oz., dissolved in which alcohol, 1 pt. Rub the face in this until for awhile. Woman's Realm.—Advertisement.
